McIntyre has been City Manager for the City of Menlo Park.

Ventura City Council selects Alex McIntyre as new city manager

The Ventura City Council announced today that it has selected Alex McIntyre as the new City Manager of Ventura. McIntyre is scheduled to begin with the City in mid-November. He replaces Mark Watkins who left in December 2017 after five years in the City Manager position.

"I believe Alex's experience, enthusiasm and inclusive leadership style make him an ideal fit to be Ventura's next City Manager," said Deputy Mayor Matt LaVere. "I know Alex is eager to begin his work here alongside Council, City staff and all of our residents for the betterment of our community."

McIntyre served as the City Manager for the City of Menlo Park since 2012. Prior to his position at Menlo Park, McIntyre served as Chief Assistant County Administrator with the County of Marin from 2006-2008, and before that was Town Manager of Tiburon from 2000-2006. He also served as Town Manager of Portola Valley from 1997-2000.

McIntyre holds a Master of Public Administration from the University of Southern California and a bachelor's degree in Political Science from the University of California, Irvine.

In accordance with the City Charter, the City Manager is appointed by the City Council as the administrative head of the City government.

Serra Cross

by Councilmember Christy Weir

The Thomas Fire devastated our Ventura hillsides, including Serra Cross Park. All of the vegetation was burned, and signs, fence, trash cans, picnic tables, lights and sprinkler system were destroyed. The cross caught fire, but thankfully only a small section suffered major damage. We have discussed the option of replacing it with a new wooden cross, but the public has let us know that the scorched section serves as a vivid reminder of Ventura's resiliency and strength through this disaster.

City of Ventura Bicycle Master Plan identified the redesign as an opportunity to improve bicyclists' access.

City of Ventura improves safety and access at Five Points

New signalized crossings, traffic boxes (bright-green box on the road striping, and pedestrian-activated flashing beacon crossings have been installed at the Five Points intersection in Midtown to improve safety and access through this intersection located at Thompson Boulevard, Main Street and Telegraph Road. Drivers are advised to take proper safety precautions, yield to pedestrians and bicyclists in the rightof-way and share the traffic lanes in a safe and cohesive manner.

The Five Points intersection improvement project includes the installation of new access curb ramps, sidewalk and passageways through medians, traffic signage and striping, and concrete median islands. New bike with a white bicycle symbol inside) have been installed on the eastbound and westbound lanes of Main Street at the intersection. As a reminder, drivers should stop behind the white stop line (behind the green box) when the traffic signal is yellow or red; do not stop on top of the bike box. When the traffic light turns green, drivers and cyclists move through the intersection with cyclists going first. Bicyclists should enter the bike box from the green bike lane.

Two new pedestrian-activated flashing beacon crossings have been installed on the eastbound lanes of Thompson Boulevard; at Frances Street, and on the south side of the intersection.

City News

Motorists are required to stop for pedestrians however pedestrians should make sure cars are stopped before they begin to cross the street. These improvements are important to increase motorists' awareness of pedestrians and bicyclists at intersections especially at multi-lane crossings such as Thompson Boulevard.

The City of Ventura Bicycle Master Plan identified the redesign of the Five Points intersection as an opportunity to improve pedestrian and bicyclists' access and safety. Last year the City of Ventura was named a Bronze Bicycle Friendly Community by the League of American Bicyclists.

Ventura Water implements meter upgrade

New meters will automatically relay customer's water usage

Ventura Water will start upgrading manually-read meters with new meters that will automatically relay customer's water usage to the City's water billing system through a secured network. The project began on October 1, 2018 and will replace water meters for approximately 32,000 Ventura Water customers over a 3-year period.

The new meters will allow customers to track daily water use and be notified of leaks with Home Connect, a new online water tracker. "Ventura Water relies heavily on accurate and timely data," said Ventura Water General Manager Kevin Brown. "The meter upgrade project will modernize our system and equip both customers and staff to better manage our water resources through real time water usage data and greatly improved leak detection."

Customers will receive a notification in the mail 1-2 weeks prior to their scheduled upgrade. The City's contractor, Professional Meters Inc. (PMI), will be installing the new water meters. Customers do not have to be at home for the replacement to occur. Once the exchange is complete, customers will receive a door hanger detailing the work performed and additional contact information.

The City asks that customers provide easy access to their water meters by making sure the meters are not blocked by bushes, vines, equipment, or other materials that would prevent PMI personnel from replacing the meter. Meter boxes are typically located near the sidewalk. Customers with a meter behind a locked gate or a meter that is otherwise inaccessible should call PMI at 1-866-965-0657 to schedule an appointment for the new meter installation.

PMI installers will have easily identifiable uniforms and their vehicles will have identifying logos. If an installer cannot show you an identification badge, or if you have a concern about the identification,

Opinion/Editorial

WOW, WOW and WOW! Pinch me again - it can't be true that we just completed our eleventh year of publication. Our first issue was on Oct.24,

There are so many people to thank, that I can't thank them all. Our wonderful readers, our fabulous advertisers who keep us in business, and our unbelievably dedicated staff including writers, photographers and distributors. A special shout-out to Alfred J. Lewis - who makes the paper great every issue and continues to be my free therapist - Breezy Gledhill, who brings in the money and Cindy Summers who contributes in various ways while also making our website wonderful.

It goes without saying that it is very important that our dedicated readers support our advertisers so that we can continue to be Ventura's "beloved newspaper." It is their dollars that keep us in business.

■ In our last issue's Person to Person article it asked readers, "Do you think the Top Hat Restaurant should be declared a historical building and should it remain there as part of the planned new development?"

There wasn't enough space available for my two cents, so here it is:

"No, it's not historical. If it's historical - I'm ancient! It's just an old nondescript plywood building with no historical significance or looks. I do agree with one of our readers who said it should be moved to the outside area of the Ventura County Museum."

And speaking of Person to Person, a panel of Republican women have defended Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh following allegations of attempted sexual assault. One posed the question, "What 17-year-old boy hasn't done this in high school?"

I didn't do that (I did pull a girl's pigtail in the second grade), but maybe I was the exception so perhaps in our next "Person to Person" we should ask men if they sexually assaulted any girls while in high school?

There are many legal marijuana dispensaries in nearby communities. Perhaps our new city council members (3 or 4) will see the folly of Ventura not having any and the large amount of tax money that we are losing. It is legal now ya know!

Per a cover story, the City Council has hired Alex McIntyre to be our new City Manager. His base annual salary will be $255,000 plus other allowances and benefits consistent with similar executive management positions.

Before you get overly excited regarding his salary, the City Manager is typically the highest paid city employee, since he's the City's Chief Executive Officer like that of a very large corporation and is the boss of all city employees. He only answers to the City Council. Mr. McIntyre's tentative start date will be November 13, 2018.

His salary is similar to other local city manager's. Thousand Oaks: $244,000, Camarillo: $245,000 and Oxnard: $252,000.

■ In a previous issue I stated that I would not comment further on the national political scene. I have had more readers condemn me than praise me for this stance, so I am changing my mind. I have also commented on the importance of a free press in a well-functioning democracy. It is even more vital that readers express their opinions.

None of the following phrases were written by me (except a few comments in parenthesis). You can draw your own conclusions.

"President Donald Trump's opening remarks at the United Nations Tuesday created an awkward and unexpected moment, with other world leaders laughing or grumbling at the American president's boast about his administration's accomplishments." (He later stated that he was kidding. Maybe he could be a regular on Saturday Night Live).

"President Donald Trump told reporters on Wednesday that China supposedly respects him for his 'very very large brain' during a news conference where he addressed wide-ranging issues." (I don't dare touch this one).

"The President said he is not in favor of statehood for Puerto Rico based on a personal feud with a local mayor."

"President Trump told a crowd of supporters in West Virginia on Saturday night that he and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un "fell in love" after overcoming early hostilities."

"When asked about the allegations of sexual assault against his Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh, President Trump said that it is a 'scary time' for men in the United States and that men are now "guilty until proven innocent." (Especially for men who don't have $130,000 to pay off a "porn

"A survey of 25 nations by the Pew Research Center showed that respondents from across the globe have less confidence in Trump's ability to lead than they do in Russia's Vladimir Putin and China's Xi Jinping" (how sad is that)

■ If you disagree with me, just writing to call me an idiot and saying that I'm stupid (even if true) doesn't take the least bit of intelligence.

Write to me at opinions@venturabreeze.com and express yourself (in a way that can appear in a family newspaper, please). You might even get me to change my mind/perspective.

Speaking of opinions, there is a huge amount of misinformation on the site Nextdoor.com, so be mindful of what you read. Just try to verify statements before making definitive comments. The downside of social media is that too many comments are seen as being factually correct. I've noticed that there has been a lot of misinformation lately regarding our police department, city council and our homeless situation.

Don't leave messages (based on fake news) for council members like "I demand to know why the city council approved a strip club downtown". Instead, "I heard that the city council approved a strip club downtown, is that true?"

The city council is not your enemy. They are trying to serve the city the best

Would you take that job for what amounts to maybe $3 per hour?

Don't get me wrong I certainly do not agree with all of their decisions. Just make sure you are well informed.

Who did the research on Padre Serra? No name is mentioned. It goes to show you how false press is released to the public and how uneducated certain people are. The Padres including Padre Serra helped Native Americans against the abusive and cruel Spanish Soldiers. It was the Spanish military who treated the Indians so badly and, many Native Americans were decimated because of illnesses the Spanish military brought with it.

W. Moyer Moyer:

First let me explain that none of the comments about Padre Serra were mine. I have nothing against him. My article was about Stanford University removing his name from many of their buildings, so a name was mentioned. Stanford University is hardly uneducated and considered one of the finest colleges in the United States. If you disagree with their decision you should be contacting them. By the way, many other organizations are coming to the same conclusion.

The funny statue was just that and meant no disrespect for the padre.

Thank you for your comments. Sheldon

District 1 Conflict of Interest

In elections, a conflict of interest, whether legal or the mere perception of conflict will taint the entire process. In Ventura City Council District 1 race, the Executive Director of the Downtown Ventura Partners, Kevin Clerici, is running to represent the downtown and the Avenue area of Ventura.

There is nothing against Mr. Clerici personally. He is a good person and means well. However, just because the FPPC says he can run, his actions, both on the dais and behind the scenes, are open to question, no matter how innocent his intentions might be.

The Downtown Ventura Partners receives 40% of its operations revenue through a special tax. That tax is voted on by downtown property owners. The City of Ventura controls 33% of the downtown properties. When there is a vote within the special property district, the City of Ventura, directed by the City Council, votes as a block and therefore controls the outcome. When only 72% of the property owners vote, the City's 33% becomes 46%, in effect. That means the City needs another 5% of the downtown property voters to vote yes. Therefore, the City Council has almost total control of the downtown special tax vote.

With the special district tax, the Downtown Ventura Partners (DVP) receives $485,186 in annual special taxes. On top of that, the Ventura City Council also awards DVP another $172,000. Of their entire budget, the Downtown Ventura Partners (DVP) receives over 52% of its revenue, either directly or indirectly, from votes by the Ventura Council. Therefore, Mr. Clerici would be voting on his own livelihood.

Mr. Clerici receives a salary of $85,000 from the Downtown Ventura Partners (DVP). Therefore, even if he Continued on page 8

Answer in a Breeze

Hi Sheldon;

I am not sure of the name of this mall other than Burlington Coat Factory is located there at the corner of Main and Telephone Roads. Do you know what construction is going on there and what they have planned to build there? Thank you.

We reached out to Dave Ward Ventura

Principal Planner to get an answer.

The center, which has separate property owners (not just one which would be more typical), is undergoing overall updates: new facades, landscape and circulation components and new

New Starbucks with drive thru visually at Main/Telephone corner but access is by Chucky Cheese.

Old Hudson, demolished now, becomes a parking lot area.

Next to Baja Fresh a new possible drive thru use...don't think the operator yet decided.

Tuesday Morning moved to an expanded suite (new addition popped out on backside) next to Burlington. This part completed.

Quite an upgrade to the center ndeed!

And an aside note... Aldi is proposing store in suites that include existing Starbucks and two suites next to Lamps Plus across the street, plus upgrades to parking lot and landscape and maybe some other facade changes. So that shopping center is going to see changes

"Be very careful crossing the train tracks."

California's "Operation Clear Track" promotes rail safety

On Tuesday, September 25 during Rail Safety Week, September 23-29, Amtrak and more than 500 local, state, federal and railroad law enforcement departments partnered with California Operation Lifesaver, the nonprofit rail safety education organization, for "Operation Clear Track". The goal of the operation is to raise awareness and enforce railroad grade crossing and trespassing laws in 48 states across the U.S. "Operation Clear Track" was the largest single law enforcement railroad safety operation ever attempted in the U.S.

During "Operation Clear Track," California law enforcement personnel were stationed at targeted railroad grade crossing incident locations to hand out railroad safety cards to motorists and pedestrians, and issue warnings and citations to violators. The goal of Rail Safety Week is to reduce pedestrian and driver injuries and fatalities around railroad tracks through increased public awareness.

The Ventura Police Department was at the following railroad grade crossings from 9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.: Harbor Blvd and California Street and Harbor Blvd and Figueroa Street.

Federal statistics show that about every three hours in the United States, a person or vehicle is hit by a train. "Operation Clear Track" is an effort by California Operation Lifesaver, Amtrak and rail safety partner organizations to raise awareness of the need for caution near train tracks.

up-to-six-month "pilot shelter" instead of the traditional foul weather seasonal homeless shelter.

According to the proposed plan, the new 24-hour homeless shelter will offer services to the homeless such as employment help, housing assistance, mental health and substance abuse issues among the homeless population. The proposal will use the Oxnard Armory, owned buy the city of Oxnard to house the proposed vear-round shelter.

The city of Oxnard, Ventura and the county would each pay $185,000, with the funding share to possibly be proportioned based on the actual use of the shelter by Ventura and Oxnard persons experiencing homelessness, the staff report states.

Both cities would be using the shelter until they open permanent ones. Oxnard is looking for a site to put a permanent shelter in its community, while Ventura is working on a plan to lease the first floor of a Ventura County building located on Knoll Drive in Ventura.

The Knoll Drive location needs improvements including sprinklers, bathrooms, showers, and asbestos abatement among just a few. The city is also seeking an operator and has already conducted three interviews of potential operators. The site could potentially be up and running by next winter. Costs are estimated to be in the $2 million for the proposed improvements and $1.2 million to run each year. Half that amount would be the city's share. "Significant concerns were expressed regarding existing safety concerns and that the shelter will worsen this already challenging environment," the staff report says in part.

There were also concerns expressed about property values.

Another option would be a shelter that would open just when the weather reaches a certain temperature or rain is predicted at a certain level. Based on the past two years, such a shelter would open approximately 22 days from December through March and cost $15,000 to $20,000.

A location has yet to be identified, but city staff and the Ventura Social Services Task Force identified several faith-based organizations willing to volunteer once a site has been determined. The city already has the cots and linens to use in a temporary space.

The city has also adopted a "declaration of shelter crisis," which paves the way to get money through the state's Homeless Emergency Aid Program. The county will receive nearly $4.9 million to distribute early next month. Oxnard, Fillmore, Santa Paula, Simi Valley and the county have already approved the declaration staff reports indicate.

The council also approved a new two-year contract with members of the Service Employees International Union. The contract gives the group a raise of just over 5 percent and a one-time payment of $500 instead of expired on June 30th.

The new contract runs from July 1st, 2018 to June 30th, 2020, and cost is estimated at $1.3 million.

The two-year cost for all labor groups approved so far is $3.8 million. This figure does not include members of the city's fire two fire unions which have yet to reach an agreement on a new contract.

recluses himself on downtown issues, the citizens in District 1 will be underrepresented with Mr. Clerici as their representative.

Bob Alviani Ventura

The Breeze asked the Downtown Ventura Partners to respond. Mr. Clerici's candidate statement is in this issue.

RE: Alviani Letter to the Editor

Mr. Alviani is confused about the downtown Ventura special district and the non-profit, Downtown Ventura Partners (DVP) that contracts with the city to manage it.

The city's Property-Based Improvement District (PBID) straddles three of the new city council districts (1,2 and 7) and no single council member will be the exclusive representative.

Mr. Alviani states that "The City of Ventura directed by the City Council, votes as a block and therefore controls the outcome (of the PBID elections)." He bases this on his erroneous assumption that the city owns 33% of the property within the district when the real number is less than 23%. If just 25% of the other property owners voted contrary to the City Council, those owners would prevail.

All future city council votes on the PBID and other DVP programs will be controlled by a permanent majority of council members from the eastside. If either the city or property owners conclude that there isn't appropriate value for their investment, they may terminate contracts with our non-profit or overturn the PBID at any time.

The DVP board asked its executive director Kevin Clerici to reach out to the state's Fair Political Practices Commission (FPPC) and the City Attorney to provide preliminary advice on potential conflicts prior to Mr. Clerici filing as a city council candidate. If he is elected, there will certainly be votes on which he will have to recuse himself but it does not disqualify him from running or serving.

Meanwhile, DVP will continue to make downtown a clean, safe and vibrant hub for all of Ventura.

Clerici is the executive director of Downtown's nonprofit improvement district.

Candidate statement

Kevin Clerici, Candidate for City Council Dist 1

Ventura Firefighters, Police Officers, local labor leaders and small business owners all agree that Kevin Clerici is the experienced choice for Ventura City Council District 1.

"I'm running for City Council to ensure we have safer neighborhoods, protect our environment, address our homeless/vagrancy challenges, improve traffic infrastructure and expand our parks and open spaces so our children, seniors and working families can thrive," said Kevin, 41, an Avenue homeowner.

Since 2011, Kevin, a former local journalist, has served as executive director of Downtown's nonprofit improvement district, which is independent of the City. He is the only candidate who lives and works in District 1.

During his time downtown, Kevin has forged a reputation as an informed and accessible leader who is quick to help others and is known for getting things done. Kevin is on the front lines of addressing the City's homeless and housing challenges and sits on the countywide Mental Health Advisory Board and city's homeless task force, among others. He's endorsed by Ventura's Police & Firefighters Associations.

"Thave spent 20 years in public service and believe in bringing people together to solve problems," he said, noting that the Westside has not had an elected local resident in decades. "No candidate will be more devoted, accessible or prepared. District 1 deserves an experienced, trusted leader. A real champion to make sure the Westside and Downtown get the attention and resources it deserves." Website is www.KevinforVentura.com.

CMH's Ocean Tower

By Jill Forman

For the administration and staff of Community Memorial Hospital, the word "community" is more than a name. It's a philosophy, and a mission.

From local artwork, to a capital campaign that helped fund the project, to giving county residents state of the art medical care and comfort, CMH's new Ocean Tower represents the hospital's feeling of being a vital part of Ventura. "We take the name Community to heart," says Mike Ellingson, VP Marketing and Development, during a media tour on September 25. Joining the tour was Gary Wilde, President and CEO and Adam Thunell, COO, who spearheaded the project. Ellingson says with a laugh, "It's been my job to keep Adam sane."

The CMH campus is on the corner of Loma Vista Road and Brent Street in Midtown Ventura, eight acres of medical care facilities. It will include the Ocean Tower for inpatient services, and the older Mountain Tower for outpatient and hospital support services. Existing buildings are the medical office building on Brent Street housing doctors' offices and Same-Day Surgery, the Coastal Communities Cancer Center, two parking structures with 1094 free parking spaces, and a public park with labyrinth.

The new building was necessitated by three factors: to fulfill seismic requirements, to replace and augment an aging structure built in the 1960's, and to attract the next generation of physicians with state-of-the-art technology while delivering high-quality care and ensuring patient privacy needs. The cost was $350 million and remained on budget.

The building was "received" on August 28 and full operation is planned for mid-December. Between now and then a remarkable amount of work is taking place. As Ellingson says, "There are trucks rolling in all the time" with supplies and equipment. Staff members are present daily for four months of safety training, stocking supplies, and deciding on work routes; doctors and other team members are training on new technology. The amount of time it will take to complete this was based on the experience of other hospitals.

"A Day in the Life" was a comprehensive training day with 350 staff members; two more are scheduled. As realistically as possible, they ran drills and imagined scenarios, finding problems with systems and methods so they could analyze and correct them ahead of time. Another huge project is the installation of art, over 500 pieces, by local and regional artists. "We take the name Community to heart," states Ellingson; "We have a vibrant art community here and want to showcase it." Some art works have been carefully stored and curated for four years, and now is being mounted. The hospital also plans on working with the Museum of Ventura County to co-create future exhibits.

On to the tour. The facility is spacious and light-filled; over 2000 panes of glass were to bring in natural healing sunlight and showcase the views of ocean and hills. The front garden has a large mosaic that was in an interior garden of the Mountain Tower, and now is incorporated into a fountain at the entrance. Indoor/outdoor dining has terrace seating for 70, landscaped for privacy. Another privacy improvement is a bay of elevators specifically for patients and staff. They rise from the ER, to Surgery, Labor and Delivery, and Critical Care, vulnerable areas for patients who need confidentiality.

Two floors are for general medical/ surgical patients, 60 large private rooms per floor with their own bathroom and shower; couches fold into beds for families who will be encouraged to stay. The floors have central nurses' stations that are not enclosed, accessible to families. Each room has a computer for staff to use; there will not be equipment in the halls as there is in older facilities. Eleven specialized isolation rooms with antechambers for protective clothing will add to staff and visitor convenience.

Room designers toured the country to find the latest and most efficient room design. Input was also sought from nurses and other staff and changes made.

ICU/CCU combined has 28 beds in private rooms. Seismic bracing can be seen in some of the windows, but it doesn't block the view or the light. 2,258 braces go 60 feet into bedrock. The seismic mandate included that the building has to be not only standing but serviceable in an earthquake, and the building can function with an instant kickover to internal power sources.

"The challenge in medicine is that as more is done in outpatient settings, patients in hospital are sicker, need more technology. That's why we needed a larger ER, new cardiac catheterization labs, larger critical care and telemetry floors, and more surgery suites," Ellingson explains. $100 million of the budget was for equipment, all state of the art with that flexibility.

OB and Pediatrics contains a Level 3 NICU, the highest level, with its own surgery suite on the floor. Pediatrics/Adolescents has 8 beds. Two C-section rooms and a Family Overnight Room complete the full-service department.

10 surgery suites are large and state of the art; CMH is already the busiest surgery center in the county. with multiple video screens for streaming. As Ellingson says, "We have to build in flexibility. Who knows what changes there will be in next 50-60 years; we have to build for the future also without knowing what it will be like. Hospitals will have to adapt."

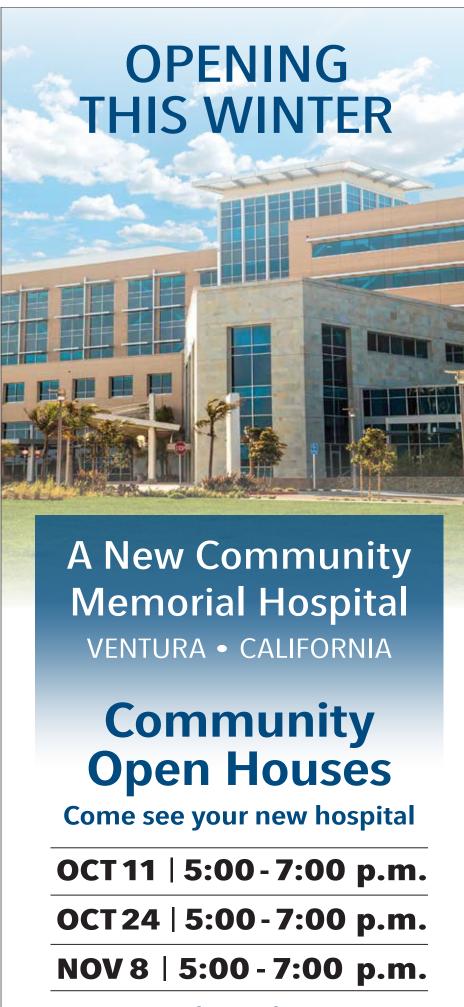

There are specialized Cardiac Catheterization rooms, a robotic surgery suite, 2 orthopedic rooms, electrophysiology labs, private rooms for surgeons to meet with families.

The Emergency Department has 37 private treatment rooms, two fully-equipped Trauma bays, and a large waiting area.

On the first floor are the Imaging Wing, the dining areas, and two interior gardens. The Healing Garden is for patients and families; the Respite Garden is for staff and visitors.

As the tour wound down, while answering questions, Ellingson reiterated, "This is really the community's hospital."

Councilmember Christy Weir, also on the tour, said, "The city is fortunate to have this addition to our Wellness District; it will be a catalyst not only for the health community but also for the economic wellness of the area."

Pick a store that is clean and well supplied.

Shopping for food that's good for you

If you have a choice of where to get your groceries, pick a store that is clean and well supplied. If it is also busy, the stock is probably more likely to turn over quickly.

Many people say a successful trip to the grocery store starts with a shopping list. Throughout the week, try to keep a list of food and supplies you need. Keeping to a list helps you follow a budget because you will be less likely to buy on impulse. A prepared grocery list will help you choose healthy types of foods.

When making your shopping list, check your staples. Staples are nice to have around if you can't go grocery shopping.

A trip to the grocery store can be a chore for anyone, but as you get older, you might have some new reasons for not going. For example, getting around a big food store might be difficult. What can you do?

Some stores have motorized carts, which you can use.

Ask if there is an employee who can help you reach things or push your cart.

If your store has a pharmacy department, you might find a seat there if you get tired.

Plan to shop at a time of day when you are rested.

If it's a busy grocery store, try to pick a time when it might not be so crowded; that way you won't have to stand in a long check-out line.

Check with your local Area Agency on Aging to see if there are volunteers in your area who can help.

If you can find a farmers' market or vegetable stand nearby during the growing season, fruits and vegetables might cost less than in the grocery store. Local Harvest can also direct you to farmers' markets in your area.

You might also be able to get some help from the federal government to pay for vegetables and fruits from farmers' markets through the Seniors F armers' Market Nutrition Program. They provide coupons you can use at farmers' markets and roadside stands.

One Basket, All Eggs. Risky!

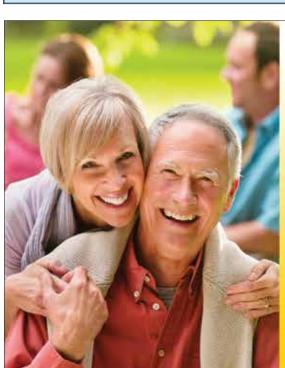

by Jayson Cohen

American Legacy Solutions

Achieving a high income and net worth is half the battle in the quest for financial security. The other half is trying to keep and grow your assets once you have them. While this latter half is perhaps a nice problem to have, it has been the cause of many a headache.

One problem some people make is the proverbial "putting all of their eggs in one basket." In the investing world, even just putting too many eggs in too few baskets can be enough to sink a financial battleship. Too often, people make this mistake in a misguided effort to go all in on chasing maximum returns.

Conventional wisdom does indeed hold that you have to accept higher risk in order to get higher returns and, accordingly, have to accept lower returns in order to lower your risk. However, there are a couple of quite serious problems with this logic, common though it may be. For starters, it is almost impossible to predict with certainty which investments will flourish in the future and which ones will tank.

It is not as though anyone ever sets out to have their financial goals torpedoed by a bad investment, but, no matter how sound a plan may seem at the outset, there is always at least some chance that it could go awry. If a particular investment makes up even as little as 20 percent of your portfolio and crashes, it can take your financial goals and security down with it. Fortunately enough, this reality does not have to doom investors to rolling the Wall Street dice as best they can and then sweating out results over numerous sleepless nights.

The concept of financial diversification is actually old enough to have been referenced in a Shakespeare play, "The Merchant of Venice," four centuries ago. In the 1950s, Harry Markowitz, an academic researcher, articulated modern portfolio theory. His research uncovered the insight that putting together a portfolio of investments that did not all correlate with each other had the effect of reducing the variability (risk) of the portfolio without giving up returns.

In other words, as long as all of your investments do not tend to rise and fall in value at the same time, your portfolio could be effectively insulated from catastrophic losses while still set up for strong long-term gains. Accordingly, diversifying your investments across numerous (thousands) of companies prevents you from having to worry about whether one or even several of them will collapse. Even though it could happen, it could be on a small enough scale that it will not hurt you.

Undoubtedly, these realizations explain much about why it is so difficult for even professional investors to beat the returns of broad indexes like the S&P 500. Diversification is sometimes described as the only free lunch in finance. Accordingly, as simple as it sounds, the best approach, by far, that you can take once you have otherwise reached a high income or net worth is to put your investment money in broadly diversified funds and leave the anxiety to those prone to over-thinking things.

Allow us to take a look at your retirement plan and assess the amount of risk you currently have. You should be confident your plan will make it through any potentially volatile years to come.

Healthy aging in winter and beyond: 4 important vaccines for seniors covered by Medicare

Fall is in full swing, meaning colorful foliage, delicious pumpkin treats, and-perhaps best of all-cooler weather! While you may be celebrating the end of an unbearable summer, it's important to remember that cooler weather can also mean greater risk of

Here's a list of four vaccines that Medicare helps pay for and that you should talk with your doctor about to help protect yourself from illness this winter and beyond.

Influenza Vaccine: Why is it important for older adults to get the flu shot? Older adults-even if you are healthy-are at higher risk when it comes to the flu due to age-related weakening of our immune systems, making it more difficult for us to fight off disease.

The flu vaccine is a once a year, cost-free Medicare Part B benefit. For Original Medicare, you must use a physician or healthcare provider who accepts Medicare, and for Medicare Advantage, you may have to use an in-network doctor or pharmacy.

Shingles Vaccine: Shingles is a painful skin rash that's caused by the same virus responsible for chickenpox. Shingles is less contagious than chickenpox, and can only be passed on to another person up until the point when the infected person's blisters begin to scab. Even after shingles passes, long-term pain can linger.

Researchers believe that the age-related weakening of our immune systems can trigger the "reawakening" of the dormant chickenpox virus.

All Medicare Part D drug plans, or Medicare Advantage plans that include prescription coverage, typically cover the shingles vaccine.

Pneumococcal Vaccine: Pneumococcal disease causes severe infections throughout the bloodstream and/or key organs. While you may not have heard of pneumococcal disease, you have probably heard of the conditions that result from this disease, including pneumonia and meningitis.

The pneumococcal vaccine is a cost-free benefit covered by Medicare Part B. For Original Medicare, you must use a physician or healthcare provider who accepts Medicare, and for Medicare Advantage, you may have to use an in-network doctor or pharmacy. Hepatitis B Vaccine: What is the hepatitis B virus? Hepatitis B (or hep B) is a contagious virus that infects the liver. Acute hep B, which usually lasts a few weeks, often mimics symptoms similar to the flu, like fever and nausea. Chronic hep B is long-term, often has no symptoms at all, and can cause liver damage or death.

Why is it important for older adults to get the hepatitis B vaccine? The liver and its function change as you age, making hep B more prevalent among older adults. Your risk of contracting hepatitis B increases if you have hemophilia, end-stage renal disease (ESRD), diabetes, or other conditions that lower resistance to infection. Acute hep B is particularly dangerous for older adults because there is no specific treatment for the symptoms.

Make a plan to get vaccinated today!

Getting these vaccines is an important part of healthy aging, and they also help ensure the health of your friends and family. Call your doctor today to see if these vaccines are right for your health, and then check with your Medicare provider about where you can get them. If you know someone who may not be vaccinated, share this information with them so they can take the next step toward protecting themselves.

Master Trainer, will be held in Camarillo, but volunteers can teach in any of Oxnard RSVP's 12-week classes in the four west county cities served (Oxnard, Camarillo, Ventura and Pt. Hueneme).

After training, volunteers must practice at least 30 hours before being certified to teach; often those trained practice together for support. Attendance at quarterly in-services will be required of volunteers.

No experience is necessary, but volunteers must be age 55 or older and make a six-month commitment to teach three hours per week. Since instructors work as teams, time away for illness or short vacations is possible.

For more information on the instrucor training or to make an appointment to be interviewed for the position, please call 805-385-8023. There are currently three Ventura classes and two each in Oxnard and Camarillo.

A federal grant received by the City of Oxnard and its RSVP program funds the free exercise classes, which follow curriculum developed at the Oregon Research Institute (in Oregon) where studies showed improved strength and balance, increased mobility and reduced incidence of falls among seniors who participated in the classes.

Classes consist of a core eight-form routine of Yang-style Tai Chi with built-in exercise variations. It teaches participants balance skills and good body alignment by using coordinated and flowing movements. The classes are intended for adults age 60 and older who can walk easily with or without assistive devices.

RSVP is a volunteer recruitment and placement program, helping people 55 and older find volunteer positions that match their interests, talent and available time. The Oxnard RSVP has almost 575 members and is sponsored by the City of Oxnard. To learn more about being an RSVP member or to discuss other volunteer opportunities, call 805-385-8023.

Fairground is transformed into a virtual Scottish village of this or any age Southern California's Seaside Highland Games – the premier Scottish festival on the Pacific Coast – will launch their 16th outing on October 13 & 14. Staged on the Ventura County Fairgrounds the venue is transformed into a virtual Scottish village of this or any age. Set on the Pacific shores, the festival is fortunate to enjoy the ocean breezes in virtually every year. And October it the optimal time to enjoy the 'twixt'n tween" time between summer and fall.

Participants in the Seaside Games travel from all the western states to take part – Washington and Oregon to the north and Arizona, Utah and Nevada to the east. This year, because our honored clan will be Clan Graham Society of North America, we will be flooded with Grahams from all across this nation as well as our neighbors in Canada. There could be a new native Scots thrown into the mix as well!

The special guests this year will be the Honorable Ms Joni Smith, Scottish Counselor for North America from her Washington DC offices. And the World Champion Grade 3 pipe band ...the Pasadena Scots!

On Friday night of games weekend there is the "A Scottish Evening", which consists of a sumptuous buffet supper, great Scottish music and a Scottish fashion show! A Single Malt Tasting precedes the dinner with a dozen plus premium Scotch brands to taste!

Saturday brings the gala opening ceremonies and grand parade at noon in front of the Alex Beaton Stage. Clan names and mottoes will be called out by the Voice of the Seaside Games, Bill Graham, as clan members march by, interspersed with all the fine bagpipe and drum bands in attendance. A true color spectacle! Four stages of wonderful music will be playing continuously throughout the weekend, while nearby the Highland heavies, the braw Scottish athletes, will amaze you. The herding dogs demos will amuse and thrill you and the dancers of all ages will enthrall you! The St. Andrew's Society of Los Angeles Harp Glen is an awesome stop and the World War II military encampment will teach you a thing or three about our tremendous history. Fine vendors, tasty Celtic food and drink when the need arises, and a precious Children's Glen for the wee ones add to the amazing offerings.

Cometo Seaside and see it all! October 13 and 14 on the Ventura County Fairgrounds! For more information seasidechief@aol.com or call John and Nellie at 818-886-4968.

Tree watering best practices

by Maryann Ridini Spencer

During times of drought, there are water efficient tips you can employ to keep the trees in your landscape healthy and thriving. At Ventura Water's September 8th free gardening class held at Green Thumb Nursery, Certified Nursery Professional Richard Flowers shared his expert tips.

Flowers encouraged customers to understand their soil type, "If your soil is hard, dry and compacted you may have a clay soil which needs to be watered slowly and less often, rather than sandy soil which can be watered more frequently for not as long."

Flowers provided recommendations for maximizing soil moisture and improving soil health. "When you first plant a tree, I always suggest creating a basin around the base and filling it with mulch. Avoid mulch touching the main trunk. Incorporating an organic soil mix under the tree's canopy or by the tree's Continued on page 21

The National Police Dog Foundation is very pleased to announce the availability of another 50 (12-month health insurance) K-9 Health Insurance Grants. They are now accepting applications.

In 2017 they launched their K-9 Health Insurance Fund, which was established from an initial donation by Petplan Pet Insurance. The fund is supported by designated gifts from the public to the National Police Dog Foundation and a $50 donation from Petplan for each new pet insurance policy booked by the public using the campaign code NPDF10 at https://nationalpolicedogfoundation.org/petplan/. Pet parents who use the code can also receive a 10% discount on their new policy.

The purpose of the fund is to offer grants to law enforcement K-9 units, ensuring the continued well-being of the K-9s.

Madison Square Garden in New York City has always hosted the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show, where a plethora of dogs come from far and wide along with their owners in order to compete. The dog show has pups of all shapes, sizes, and personalities, but there was one beagle pup named Uno who became a crowd favorite and was able to capture the hearts of everyone watching. Uno was special because he was so much more than just a show dog; he was kind, playful, and a truly lovable pup. Everyone watching the dog show and all of the fans were able to easily imagine him being their dog because of his wonderfully unique personality.

Ch. K-Run's Park Me In First, also known as Uno was a 15-inch beagle from Belleville, Illinois, who won Best in Show in the 2008 Westminster Kennel Club dog show. He was the first beagle to claim the top prize at Westminster and the first beagle to win the hound group since 1939.

Sadly, Uno recently passed away at the age of thirteen from cancer. He was loved, and he lived a happy life on a ranch in Austin, Texas. The all-American dog named Uno will never be forgotten, he will always be in our hearts.

I would like to be the only pet since I like all the attention. I am looking for my forever home and would make a great companion if given the chance. All I need is a lap to curl up in and someone to love me. If I sound like the dog for you, stop by and meet me.

Patricia has out-of-control eating habits.

How one woman shed 73 pounds and kept it off

by James Francis Gray

Patricia Rodriguez was born and raised in Ventura a graduate of Ventura High School. At 51, she felt her life was heading in the wrong direction. She, stranded in an unhappy relationship knew that she needed to make some big changes.

Thanks to out-of-control eating habits that included fast food, sweet drinks and candy, her weight shot to 198. Heavily sweetened hot chocolate was an everyday must. She ate for comfort and to tamp down her dissatisfaction with her situation. Some days she didn't have the energy to get up off the couch.

A651303

Patricia's transformation began where the relationship with her fiancé ended. It was then she realized that she could use this life-changing event to put her on the right track and take her life back. The need to rid her body and her life of toxic aspects was of paramount importance. She began to make room for the things she loved—God and family, music, dancing, sunrises, sunsets, and good inspirational conversations with new and interesting people.

She wanted to look and feel great about herself, to live a life full of hope, to set new goals. When her sister asked her what she was giving up for Lent, it challenged Patricia to give something up, she asked her daughter for suggestions. She was already a nonsmoker and did not do drugs or alcohol, but the answer came back, "give up processed sugar," Patricia panicked. "Not sugar!"

But in the end, she vowed that for 40 days she would eat only natural foods. She found recipes online: Breakfast was a green smoothie and one egg. Lunch, a mixed berry smoothie, and dinner was half a chicken breast and veggies. She was careful not to overeat, sharing meals when eating out, and taking home half or giving it to a homeless person. She measured, cut down bread and tortillas to no more than one serving a day. Instead of an entire PBJ to satisfy late-night cravings, a tablespoon of peanut butter did the trick. When she wanted hot chocolate, a couple of sips were enough.

Over time, Patricia's eating habits changed. Walking became her exercise of choice, gradually increasing to six miles or more a day. Encouragement from others and self-motivation kept her on track through the end of Lent. Every day she told herself, "I can do this!" Extra inspiration was provided by her daughter's upcoming wedding.

She refused to let small setbacks discourage her. A 2016 surgery kept her laid up for weeks and depression settled in, brought on by inactivity. But as the healing process began, with her arm in a sling, she returned to walking, steadily increasing the amount of time and distance, which helped her drop the extra weight she had picked up.

Now the owner of Patricia's Home Care, she is an active member of the Ventura business-networking group, Coffee Connections, and they are helping to build her new business website. With her four children living nearby, in good health and feeling back in control of her life, a completely new world has opened up for this successful local business owner. Her new goals include continuing healthy eating and walking. "Friends and family stood by me during my life change in 2016," said Patricia. "They witnessed my accomplishments. Some have even said I was their inspiration."

Candalaria; the voice of her people

by Richard Senate

No one knows exactly when she was born, it is estimated it was sometime around 1838 in the Sespi District of Ventura County. We know she spent much of her life in and around the village of Saticoy, just east of Ventura. She was a mission neophyte and a life long Roman Catholic, like many of her people. She lived, in her long life to see California pass from Imperial Spain to Mexico and then become part of the United States.

Her grave was believed lost but rediscovered and is now marked, a simple plaque that proclaims her as a Chumash Native American. Her name was Candalaria Valenzuela and she is perhaps the best known of all of the Chumash People. She was a major informant to Smithsonian ethnographer John Harrington with her accounts of Chumash life. Much of what we know about the tribe and its customs and beliefs comes from her interviews.

She grew up at the Mission San Buenaventura. She was part of the household of Chumash leader Captain Luis Francisco who operated a restaurant/saloon in Saticoy. He did all he could to keep alive Native American traditions and customs.

She was known for her fine baskets, and her knowledge of herbs. Candalaria was, by all accounts, a very beautiful woman in her youth. She was married three times. She was married to Jose del Rios and this union produced a son named Teen. By the 1870s she was working as a cook at the home of the Olivas Family and here she had a long term relationship with Jose Delores Olivas that produced two children.

When Jose married a "respectable" woman she left the rancho and left behind the two children who were recognized as members of the Olivas Family. They were taken in and given a good education.

After the family lost their wealth in the 1890s, Candalaria returned to help the Olivas Family. She took care of the sick and elderly mother Teodora and helped to raise Rebecca Olivas DeLa Riva's children. Years afterward the children remembered her making dolls for them out of scraps and her huge tortillas so large they filled the whole top of the wood stove.

She only moved on after the death of Teodora Olivas, and the family sold the two story adobe home. She then married Jose Valenzuela of Sonora Mexico. She was working as a cook on a ranch where Lake Casitas is today.

In 1917 she was badly burned when a gasoline stove she was using exploded. She died of her injuries in Ventura. She was, it is believed, 81 years old. She witnessed many changes in her long life from the days of the Missions to Ventura becoming a modern city. She should be honored for all she did with a statue in Ventura. Before her death she told Mr. Harrington about the beliefs of her people and even recorded her voice singing the ancient songs in the Chumash Language onto wax cylinders. These crude recordings still exist and are preserved and transferred to modern recording systems. Her voice is a time machine back to the days when the Chumash called Ventura County home.

"Our first-year VC Promise began in 2007. It was the first of its kind in the state and a model for other California community colleges," says Anne King, Ventura College Foundation executive director. In addition, the foundation, through private donations and proceeds from its Weekend Marketplace, will cover supplemental fees for all VC Promise students.

Because of the new public-private funding, an estimated 1,500 students will now benefit from the expanded first-year VC Promise.

The second-year VC Promise will begin in the 2019-2020 academic year. Students will receive second-year VC Promise support on a first come, first served basis and must meet specific academic and career planning criteria to qualify. An estimated 200 students will be served by adding the second-year Promise program.

"The goal is to remove the financial barriers that keep students from pursuing a college education," says Dr. Damon Bell, president of Ventura College. "With 70 percent of our students living in low or moderately low-income households, tuition costs make college the Ventura College Foundation and Ventura College will help increase student completion of certificates and degrees," says Dr. Greg Gillespie, chancellor of the Ventura County Community College District. "Students will then be prepared for transition into careers and transfer programs."

According to the Ventura College Foundation, VC Promise students are 70 percent more likely to earn a degree or certificate in four years. One example is Samuel Ponce, a 2018 Ventura College graduate and former VC Promise student. He just started his first semester as a transfer student at Cal State Northridge.

VC Promise is also available to veterans, active duty military, and DACA students. For more about VC Promise and the Ventura College Foundation, go to www.VCgiving.org, or call 805-289-6461.

Established in 1983, the Ventura College Foundation provides financial support to the students and the programs of Ventura College to facilitate student success and grow the impact and legacy of Ventura College as a vital community asset. The Foundation also hosts the Ventura College Foundation Marketplace; an outdoor shopping experience held every weekend on the Ventura College campus east parking lot. County launches webpage for unclaimed property tax refunds

The Ventura County Auditor-Controller is pleased to announce a new webpage for Unclaimed Property Tax Refunds: https://www.ventura.org/auditor-controllers-office/unclaimed-property-tax-refunds . Taxpayers can access a listing of unclaimed property tax refunds and instructions on how to file a claim for a refund.

Property tax refunds generally result from reassessment of property. Unclaimed property tax refunds consist of checks that remain un-cashed for a period of more than six months. Reasonable and diligent efforts have been made to notify taxpayers of their refund.

"Often checks are returned undeliverable by the postal service because the payee has moved and does not leave a forwarding address, or the forwarding order has expired," said Auditor-Controller Jeff Burgh. "If property tax refunds remain unclaimed for more than four years, they may be transferred to the county general fund on order of the Board of Supervisors."

The transfer of funds is called escheatment and, while escheatment is the legal alternative, the Auditor-Controller's primary goal is to return refunds to their rightful owner.

All property tax payers are encouraged to search the lists to determine whether they may be entitled to a refund. Claims for funds must be postmarked by November 29, 2018, in order to avoid escheatment to the county general fund. After this date, refunds left unclaimed will become property of the County and can no longer be claimed.

In addition to the webpage, people seeking a refund for unclaimed property taxes can visit the Auditor-Controller's office in the Hall of Administration at the County Government Center, 800 S. Victoria Avenue, Ventura, or call (805) 654-3182.

drip line (the area located outside the boundary where rainwater would flow off the leaves to the ground) is beneficial because the organic material helps feed the soil biology improving water uptake, and reducing soil compaction."

To test your soil's moisture, Flowers suggested using a screwdriver and inserting it approximately 6-8 inches deep at the tree's drip line. For watering best practices Flowers suggested, "early morning or dusk which limits water loss due to evaporation." He explained a newly planted tree requires more frequent watering when compared to an established tree which may only need to be watered once a month being careful not to water in one place."

"Segment your tree watering into zones. Like the face of a clock, water at positions12, 3, 6, and 9 for a total of 100 gallons of water. If you're watering with a sprinkler system, use a soup can or something similar to measure when approximately 2 inches of water has been applied. A watering hose on a timer can also work well. Just remember, it's important to water slowly."

We have spent the past ten months working on the park: removing burnt landscaping; cutting down dead trees; removing thousands of broken bottles and other debris that collected over decades and was revealed by the fire; grading the grassy area and installing new irrigation; installing new sod and hundreds of plants; sanding and repainting damaged metal benches and trash cans; mulching paths; planting ten new oak trees; replacing the up-lights that illuminate the cross at night. All of this work was done by Dafau Landscape, Halter-Encinas Landscape, Creico Electric and many dedicated volunteers.

The gates to the park have been locked since December, so there has been no vehicle access. All of the gates are located on City-owned property (Grant Park), and will be reopened when the City Parks Department decides that public access is safe. All 106 acres of Grant Park burned and there has been a massive effort by the Ventura Botanical Gardens and city staff to renovate the park for all of our residents to enjoy again.

Serra Cross Park is owned and maintained by the Serra Cross Conservancy, a non-profit formed in 2003, when the city decided to sell the cross. Renovations after the fire have been very expensive and donations are welcome. Future plans include new signage, reclaimed wood picnic tables, fencing, a variety of trees, sidewalk, curb and parking lot improvements.

Tax-deductible contributions may be sent to Serra Cross Conservancy at PO Box 48, Ventura CA 93002. Our website is www.serracrosspark.org, and we are now booking weddings and other events for 2019. We look forward to welcoming the public back up to the cross in the coming months.

Samuel Ponce just started his first semester as a transfer student at Cal State Northridge.

Every now and then an event is planned where a special milestone is celebrated; and so it goes with Army of Freshmen's 20th anniversary hometown show at Discovery on Saturday, October 13. Earlier this year, they played dates in Europe to commemorate the occasion by touring with Bowling for Soup and Lit, but when they returned, they kept getting hit up with "What about your hometown?!!" This is a big deal, so get out and support. And if by chance you've never ventured out to see them live, do yourself a favor and don't miss this one. Advance tickets are only $10, night of the show, $15 at the door.

You may have noticed on social media a new venue called Oak and Main, and while the location is a few doors down from Oak, it's definitely on Main Street having taken over where Rookees used to be. The great news is that they plan on offering live music, case in point, they'll have D.on Darox and the Melody Joy Bakers on Friday, October 12. I'm so looking forward to having more live music downtown, especially since losing Zoey's, The Watermark, Amigos and The Good Bar the past few years.

Vintura at the Wine Rack will host a Breast Cancer Fund-raiser with breast cancer survivor, Karyn 805 on Friday, October 12 from 8-11 pm. They'll donate 25% of net proceeds to the Ventura Cancer Resource Center as well as all of Karyn's tips for local women who need assistance with treatment.

All ye men and women: get out the kilts and head over for fun, games and Celtic music at the Seaside Highland Games over the weekend of October 13 and 14 at Seaside Park. The music will abound throughout both days on multiple stages with such acts as The Angry Brians, Ploughboys, Hidden Fifth, The Brown Sisters, LA Fife and Drum, Three for Joy as well as many more acts. The event runs 9 to 5, but Saturday night, you'll want to continue the fun and stop in at Grapes and Hops for a special performance from The Angry Brians.

Quick notes: Ben Katzman's DeGreaser out of Florida has a date at the Hong Kong Inn on Wednesday, October 10; Plan B Winery celebrates their 6th anniversary with Native Vibe on Sunday, October 14; new punk bands on the scene will play The Garage including Soul Wring, Section 5, and Ran Aground on Wednesday, October 17; Necrodancer from France will be at Red Cove on Friday, October 19; The Spazmatics will be at Discovery, Friday, October 19; Edie Brickell & the New Bohemians at Ventura Theater on Friday, October 19; and 50 Sticks of Dynamite will play a benefit concert for Step Up Ventura at Ventura Center for Spiritual Living on Saturday, October 20.

Dab Art is pleased to present Empire Of Dirt at H Gallery in midtown Ventura.

The creative sentiments of artists are often misunderstood. Even the most conscious viewer may be oblivious to the conflicts of the artist whose work they are admiring.

Variously characterized as radical or manic, the cliché of the tortured artist's plight is not without some merit. Empire Of Dirt investigates the inspirations found in the darker elements of life. Highlighted in this exhibition is the process and frequently concealed perspectives of 21 peculiar and complex artists.

Empire Of Dirt is an exhibition of contentious works where the viewer can explore, connect and embrace the eccentric perspectives of artists who have continued to evade conventional labels.

The soon to be opened CMH is adorned will beautiful local art throughout. When patients and family walk into the ER, they will be greeted by a spectacular mosaic of a kelp forest on all the walls of the entryway. Frank Bauer, the artist, is seen working on it. Be sure to visit the hospital during their open house dates. See ad on page 11 for the dates.

This wonderful mural is at Kids&Family Together at 864 E. Santa Clara. It was painted by a group of graduate art students from California State University Channel Islands.

An event was held at the Museum OF Ventura County honoring ArtWalk 2018 Artists Of Distinction John White and Song Byeok on Oct. .4. ArtWalk was held Oct. 6 & 7. Councilmember Cheryl Heitmann presented John White with a plaque of honor. ArtWalk is one of Ventura's signature events, drawing thousands each year.

John M. White of Ventura is a painter, sculptor and performance artist. He has been exhibiting publicly for more than 40 years. Culturally, politically and aesthetically influenced by the late '60s, White's work exemplifies this period of redefinition and experimentation.

Considered one of the seminal California performance artists, White has staged hundreds of public performances since 1967.

Continuing a tradition of bringing exciting, newsworthy artists to Ventura, ArtWalk selected of North Korean artist Song Byeok as the Global Artist for this year's 25th anniversary event. Now residing in Seoul, South Korea, Song was once an official state propaganda artist in North Korea. Here in the United States he is being called the Andy Warhol of South Korea.

The Oct. 24 issue will have more photos of the event.

Millie Musical a whiz-bang in Simi

by Shirley Lorraine

For pure fun and entertainment presented with pep by top-notch performers, the musical "Thoroughly Modern Millie" now playing through October 21 at the Simi Valley Cultural Arts Center is highly recommended.

Studio C Performing Arts out of Westlake Village has put together an outstanding cast for the lively, toe-tapping 1920's musical. Richard Morris and Dick Scanlan penned the book for the staging, adapting the original story and screenplay by Richard Morris. The staging includes a few minor variations on the 1967 film's storyline as well as added songs and musical numbers.

Millie Dillmount (Colette Peters) arrives in New York City with hopes of finding a job and marrying her boss. The naïve girl from Kansas quickly finds the City less hospitable than she had figured. A chance meeting with Jimmy Smith (Nick Tubbs) directs her to the Priscilla Hotel run by Mrs. Meers (Stephanie Lesh-Farrell) which caters to hopeful actors usually down on their luck. Along the way Millie decides to become "a modern", updating her look and finding a new best friend in Miss Dorothy Brown (Bryce Hamilton).

With her perky attitude and exceptional stenographer skills, Millie lands a job in an insurance agency. Her boss, Trevor Graydon (Brent Ramirez), a handsome, charismatic up and comer, meets her approval as a potential introduces Millie chanteuse and million-heiress Muzzie Van Hossmere (Monica Quinn). Jimmy and the gang ultimately squash the slavery ring, surprises are revealed, and true love is found.

Meanwhile, back at the Hotel, orphaned girls are disappearing. Mrs. Meers, along with her henchmen, Ching Ho and Bun Foo, heads up a scheme to sell the hapless girls into slavery. Ho and Foo converse convincingly in their own language with English subtitles provided.

There is not a weak member in this cast. The leading players all possess exceptional voices, beautifully displayed. Ramirez and Quinn particularly give standout performances. A memorable song paying homage to Gilbert and Sullivan's Modern Major General carries a quickening tempo and impressive articulation. Everyone wears a headset mic which, combined with bundles of vocal power, reaches easily beyond the 12-piece orchestra led by Mazie Rudolph.

Lesh-Farrell plays it up as the villain and Ginny Grady is a hoot as Miss Flannery, the office manager. Laughs are generous throughout as the entire cast camps it up just enough without going Director Jeffrey Scott Parsons keeps the action swift and the characters lively. Simple yet creative scene changes often happen as singing and dancing is taking place downstage. There is no down time waiting for scene changes. Period costuming is spot on and charming throughout.

Crisp, fun choreography by Keenon Hooks is tight and well executed, especially given the number of actors on the stage at once. One highlight is a scene at the insurance company involving steno desks on rollers. Both the male and female ensemble dancers make the choreography shine even more.

Thoroughly Modern Millie is just plain fun and extremely well done.

Simi Valley Cultural Arts Center, 3050 Los Angeles Ave, Simi Valley. www. sime-arts.org or 805-583-7900. Tickets are $25, seniors and students $22 and kids 12 and under are $18. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 2 p.m. on Sunday through Oct. 21.

were brilliant choices for this movie. They have wonderful chemistry when they are on screen together. The way the two of them playoff of each other works extremely well. It was an unexpected but successful and welcoming duo. Both of their characters different personalities made their friendship on screen even more exciting and intriguing to watch.

My main complaint would be that after watching the entire film and thoroughly enjoying the well thought out and thrilling plot line, the ending of the film that was chosen was very anticlimactic and disappointing. But other than that, it is a film that kept me guessing and that I without a doubt enjoyed watching.

A Simple Favor

Breeze rating from 1 to 4 palm trees, 4 being best.

by Victoria Usher

A Simple Favor is a 2018 film directed by Paul Feig. Screenplay by Jessica Sharzer. Based on 2017 novel by Darcey Bell. Cinematography by John Schwartzman. Music by Theodore Shapiro. Film Editing by Brent White. Produced by Paul Feig, Jessie Henderson, Mike Drake, and Jason Cloth. Costume design by Renee Ehrlich Kalfus.

The film stars Anna Kendrick ("Pitch Perfect"), Blake Lively ("Gossip Girl"), and Henry Golding ("Crazy Rich Asians"). It is a mystery, thriller, and it has some fantastic surprising comedy thrown into the mix as well. In the film, Stephanie Smothers (Anna Kendrick) and Emily Nelson (Blake Lively) are two suburban mothers who meet each other at the school that both of their sons go to. Despite their obvious differences, they very quickly become close friends. Stephanie is an extremely kind, upbeat, and perfect stay at home mother who runs her very own and very popular mommy vlog. Emily is mysterious, gorgeous, always dressed to kill fashion publicist with a past she would like to keep buried. The two women start spending some time together, they get to know each other a little better, and they share a few secrets with each other. Everything seems okay until one day Emily suddenly goes missing. Stephanie decides that she is going to take it upon herself to figure out what exactly happened and find Emily. But once Stephanie begins her investigation she very quickly gets pulled deeply into Emily's twisted and dark past, which in turn forces her to open her eyes and face her own dark past.

I believe that what truly keeps you on the edge of your seat while you are watching this film are the main cast and their amazing performances. Anna Kendrick and Blake Lively

Did you want to start holiday shopping early? Try some new and delicious foods? Or just buy someone (yourself?) a special treat, the Holiday Festival held at Seaside Park was a good place to be.

Arts and crafts, household items, candy, jewelry, you name it. Finding signs that said "New Artist" and seeing what they had to offer. One booth, for example, had messenger bags made out of horse feed sacks, sturdy and attractive.

Even some nonprofits were there. An exhibitor had beautiful original art and cards with elephants; they give a percentage of their profits to an elephant sanctuary. Photo by Michael Gordon.
